

CRIES OF ANGUISH AND PRAYER AS FLOOD STRIKES TRAINS

COLORADO SPRINGS, June 6.—Frank Dueray, sheriff of Mesa county, whose home is at Grand Junction, was one of the few survivors of 200 passengers on Denver and Pueblo train No. 3, which arrived in Pueblo on Friday night at 8 p. m. Just as the train pulled up to the bridge over the Arkansas river, leading into the Union Station, it was stopped.

ped, he said. "We were left there," he said. "On the next track was a Missouri Pacific train. We had been there only a short time when we heard the roar of waters and the flood lapped at the coach steps and began rising rapidly. It was soon rushing through the car. Some of us went up and down in the cars quieting the passengers, many of whom were screaming and moaning and praying.

"A young girl was sitting in her seat crying. I stopped to reassure and comfort her. She said she was from Chicago and sobbingly called out 'Daddy, daddy.' I told her we would look after her and it cheered her. But—well, I saw her swept away as the water rushed into the coaches and carried us out through windows and floors.

"An old lady sat in her seat smiling just before the water flooded in on us." She declared that if it was her time to go she was prepared, and kept on smiling. I reckon she died in her seat. I saw a young man sitting in an upper with his mother consoling her. She was praying.

"In the water we clung to the coaches of the train which were swaying back and forth with the waves and striking the coaches of the Missouri Pacific train.

"Screams and cries of anguish rose. I saw some people go to their deaths crushed between the two trains. A great pile of lumber came rushing down upon us, sweeping over us, striking some of those clinging there with precarious hold on the cars. They were torn loose and went floating down to death. I saw a man break his way through the top of a coach only to be washed down by the flood.

"On either side of us, houses and barns and other buildings were swirling down. Many people were clinging to them. I saw two women on the top of a house. The structure struck the bridge and crumbled like an egg shell. I saw their white hands a moment on the water.

"Morning came. The waters had been receding. Those of us who were left—about sixty—were able to reach the ground and walk around in water above our knees.

FLOOD SWEEPS DOWN ON KANSAS TOWNS

HAZARDOUS WORK DONE IN SENDING NEWS TO WORLD ABOUT FLOOD

DENVER, COLO., June 6.—Information in regard to conditions in flood stricken and isolated Pueblo was obtained and forwarded to the outside world under conditions that were as trying and in some instances as hazardous as those which the suffering people of that city themselves underwent.

The first news of the disaster came to Denver over the Associated Press leased wire and a Western Union Telegraph Company wire almost simultaneously. A few minutes after the Associated Press wire lost Pueblo (the last Western Union operator to leave the rush of the water wired to the Denver office).

"I am going to beat it, the water is around my feet." That was Friday night. After that it was hours before communication between Pueblo and the rest of the country was restored, over one Western Union wire. The first outside news-papers men to reach the flooded city were two Denver correspondents. One of them was an Associated Press staff man and the other a staff correspondent of the Denver Times.

They went together early Saturday morning in an airplane from this city. Later two more Associated Press operators went to Colorado Springs from Denver by train and automobile and on foot. Trains could not get within miles of the business section of the city and automobiles that managed to get around wash-outs on the roads had to stop at the city limits.

News of the conditions in Pueblo was obtained only after the greatest of difficulties. Correspondents had to work in relays to keep in contact with the lone wire—and an uncertain wire at that, which connected Pueblo with Denver, the distributing center for news that dribbled out from the city.

From the tops of buildings, newspaper men in Pueblo witnessed much of the disaster. They also used boats. The military sawgaged information when distance made it impossible to hear the human voice. Fire whistles served as signals for more urgent matters. Church bells also played their part in the transmission of emergency information. Half nude and intrepid swimmers, many of them negroes, served as couriers.

Over the objection of W. O. Carter, head of the engine men and firemen, John G. Waller, representing the eastern railroads, asked for substitution of pro-rata payment instead of time and one-half pay, the present rate, for overtime in freight and yard service. Mr. Carter declared that such a proposition was a matter of rules rather than wages and had no place in the present hearing. Mr. Waller, however, insisted that time and one-half was "injected into the wage schedules as a pay increase measure and the railroads felt that it should receive attention now."

Three Indicted For Murder of Publisher

CLEVELAND, O., June 6.—Miss Marian McArdle, 29, daughter of Mrs. Dan F. Kaber, and Mrs. Mary Brickel, 69, mother of Mrs. Kaber, and grandniece of Miss McArdle, were indicted by the county grand jury today for first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Dan F. Kaber, publisher of the Lakewood, Ohio, in his home nearly two years ago.

Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, wife of the slain man, was arrested in New York late Saturday night on a first degree murder indictment charging murder of her husband. She is being held in New York without bail awaiting extradition papers.

The indictments against Miss McArdle and Mrs. Brickel followed a confession made by Mrs. Brickel to County Prosecutor Stanton, in which she said that Mrs. Kaber planned the murder and that she and Miss McArdle knew of the murder had disarranged furniture in the Kaber home so as to make it appear that the murder had been committed by burglars.

The murder of Kaber was committed by a hired assassin as a result of a conspiracy between the three women, grandmother, mother and daughter, according to Mrs. Brickel's confession.

Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber, arrested in New York late Saturday night on a first degree murder charge of murdering her husband, declares her innocence of the crime and said she was ready to return to Cleveland at once to face trial. Steps to bring her here are under way.

For the first time since the backed body of Dan Kaber, wealthy well known publisher, a helpless invalid, was found in the bedroom of his home in Lakewood, a suburb, on July 18, 1919, it appears the state will demand some one to pay the penalty for the crime.

For nearly two years the father of Kaber and his attorneys and private detective agencies have sought out the murderer, sometimes reaching forth blindly and at other times working on well-founded clues, but always at work, slowly and carefully running down every angle of the sensational murder case.

Months Bring Clues
Scarcely a month passed without some one of the dozens at work reporting new developments to the representatives of the Kaber family.

Thus the chain of evidence was strengthened as the weeks and months passed. Great gaps in the trend of developments that for a time threatened to preclude all possibility of fixing guilt on anyone were gradually bridged. The evidence began to take shape of a tangible story, each event leading up to the next and finally, after twenty-three months of investigation, the Kaber murder case was brought before the grand jury.

Now Mrs. Kaber, the murdered man's wife has been indicted on the charge of slaying him. Detectives, who had shadowed her almost constantly since the day of the murder, trailed her to New York, but lost track of her recently. Officials of many cities have been asked to watch for her.

Kaber had been a helpless invalid, confined to his bed for three months before the murder. He was being cared for by E. W. Uterback, a male nurse, who was attracted to the invalid's bedroom by cries and moans, the night of the killing.

There he found the helpless man on the floor beside his bed with more than a score of knife wounds in his abdomen.

for by E. W. Uterback, a male nurse, who was attracted to the invalid's bedroom by cries and moans, the night of the killing.

There he found the helpless man on the floor beside his bed with more than a score of knife wounds in his abdomen.

"The man with the cap on did it," Mrs. Kaber had this done, the male nurse said Kaber whispered before he lapsed into unconsciousness.

Dies With Secret
The following day, July 19, Kaber died in Lakewood hospital, with his lips sealed on the story behind the crime.

Three persons in addition to Uterback and the murder victim were in the house when the attack occurred. They were Mrs. J. A. Bickel, Kaber's mother-in-law; Marion McArdle, his step-daughter; and her child, Anna Bacher. All three were questioned by police in their investigation of the affair, but

REDS SHOOT ONE HUNDRED PRISONERS HELD IN JAIL

TOKIO, June 6.—The Hochi Shimbun's Harbin correspondent says today that the Bolsheviks, who are preparing to evacuate Khabarovsk, capital of the maritime province, of Siberia, shot one hundred political offenders in the jail there.

The Japanese owned Herald of Asia, which is published in Tokio, fears that the reported delay in Japanese evacuation of Siberia means that the cabinet has been victimized by the militarists. The newspaper suggests that the recent coup d'etat in Vladivostok possibly will result in the militarists scheming to block complete evacuation.

All these different desires are the basis for the so-called agricultural block in both parties' manifestos of members of Congress, composed of members of both parties mostly from the West and South who are able to put through congress practically any measure of relief that the farmers may want, and president Harding is unquestionably sympathetic with the agricultural group.

Large Profits Paid in Taxes
Meanwhile, the president himself recognizes that the chief trouble of the present moment in the economic situation is the fact that the profits of yesterday out of which it might be possible for the American business man to recoup losses of today are inaccessible. Large portions of those profits have been paid into the treasury of the United States as income taxes and have in turn been expended for the business people of America to have paid taxes over a period of years rather than over a single year as a

KANSAS FARMERS FLEE BEFORE THE ONRUSH OF WATERS

TOPEKA, KAN., June 6.—The first wave of the Arkansas river flood today was sweeping down from eastern Colorado upon Kansas. The river at Syracuse was bank full at nightfall, last night, and rising rapidly. Farmers and ranchmen living in the bottoms early Sunday moved their stock to the high lands. Men on horseback are patrolling the river west of Syracuse warning the people to flee.

The Anity dam, five miles west of the city, appeared to have given way. The telephone operator reports the town of Anity completely washed away, with a possible loss of life.

Four persons who were detained to keep driftwood from the piers of a wagon bridge are reported to have gone down with the bridge into the main current of the river.

The Santa Fe Railway Company notified the communities on its lines in the Arkansas valley of Kansas, that the rush of Colorado flood water had crossed the state line and local representatives of the company were instructed to be prepared for any emergency that might arise.

"The warning has been ample, and there need be no loss of life in Kansas," said F. C. Fox, general manager of the Santa Fe.

People of Dodge City, Kansas, figure that the flood crest would reach there shortly after noon today. Heavy rains were reported west of Dodge City.

PUEBLO, COLO., June 6.—After a night of quiet, Pueblo awoke this morning to find the waters in the lower section of the city receded to below the five foot mark and still going down. The flood was at the lowest stage since its sudden onslaught last Friday night.

Today the work of removing the bodies from the Grove and Peppersauce bottoms district began. Colonel Pat Hamrock, in charge of the military, announced the situation was well in hand and that order rapidly was being restored.

All during the night the devastated areas were patrolled by a heavy guard. Only one or two cases of actual looting have been brought to light since the military assumed control.

PUEBLO, COLO., June 6.—Flood-stricken central Colorado today surveys the havoc of the most disastrous flood in the history of the west. An accurate estimate of the loss of life and property damage is impossible at this time. With morgues crowded to overflowing, hospitals turning patients to improvised relief stations and thousands homeless or suffering from exposure, every effort today was being directed toward the alleviation of suffering, leaving the work of survey and the plans of rehabilitation for the attention of outside forces en route to the almost prostrate community.

Restoration of the city to even an approach to normal conditions is a matter of weeks. Leaves must be repaired before the business section can be cleared of water.

Danger of Repetition Of Flood Seems Passed
It seemed early today that all danger of a repetition of the flood had passed, barring another cloudburst. Every dam in either the Arkansas or Fontaine rivers from which danger might be expected was a ready gone.

No Grounds To Rumor Of Renewed Rise
A report originating on the south side of Pueblo last night that the Arkansas river was four feet higher at Swallow and a new flood might be expected in Pueblo was proved groundless early today. At 3:30 o'clock the river had fallen considerably from its high point of last night.

Water had reached from the lower part of Main street, leaving only mud, which was about a foot thick. The rangers said that the condition of the river was better than at any time since early yesterday afternoon. Just before the first heavy rain.

Hundreds of people living in buildings in the vicinity of the district flooded by Friday's disaster were routed out of bed at 1 o'clock this morning as a precautionary measure as a result of this report. Many remained up the remainder of the night and few of them returned before daylight. They sought shelter in churches and the court house.

The local Red Cross placed the number of bodies found at approximately one hundred, basing its estimates on reports of personal investigation of the devastated area.

Hundreds in The Hospitals
The number of persons in temporary hospitals was placed at 500 by J. B. Morehead, secretary to Governor Shoup. Typhoid, pneumonia, diphtheria and one or two cases of insanity were found among these patients. A complete field hospital unit from Fort Logan was expected to reach here this morning.

At a conference early today of military, city and state officials, in which Governor Shoup took part, repair of the levees was decided upon as one of the first problems to be met. It was considered possible that aid of the federal government would be sought.

Floods Reported In Kansas Town
Floods of lesser magnitude were reported early today by several towns in Kansas. All are along the course of the Arkansas river, which overflowed its banks here. Syracuse and Gardner, Kansas, have reported sweeping floods and all towns in the Arkansas valley have been warned of the rising river.

Las Animas, Colorado, early today reported the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe shops at La Junta under five feet of water, the railroad yards wrecked and two hundred freight cars swept away.

To Public Buildings
A score of lives were believed to have been lost.

Two hundred residences in Las Animas were under three feet of water late last night. Inhabitants fled to public buildings and to the high land, fearing the residence section would be swept away.

Another River Breaks Banks
The Platte river broke its banks at Denver shortly after midnight, inundating several blocks of the west side residential section, from which people fled from their homes, taking refuge in the city hall. Red Cross stations cured for the homeless. Last reports from Denver early this morning said that the river was within one foot of the bridge structures in the business section and still rising. Three times yesterday came a renewal of the flood

WOODMEN REMEMBER THEIR DEAD

The exercises attendant upon the observance of Memorial Day by local Camp No. 2383 Modern Woodmen of America, held at Greenwood cemetery, Sunday afternoon, were the most impressive ever held by this large and fraternal organization. The services were made all the more successful because the Royal Neighbors joined hands with the Woodmen, which added much to the success of the exercises.

The two orders met at the Woodmen hall, Fifth and Chatham streets, each person bringing a bouquet and some quite a number. This made it possible for the Woodmen and Royal Neighbors to be well supplied with pretty flowers, which were deposited upon the graves of 129 Woodmen and 18 Royal Neighbors. A procession was formed at the hall, and led by the Martin Concert Band, the march to the cemetery was begun, and completed in fine order. The Woodmen were in front, while the Royal Neighbors were in autos so generously provided by the Woodmen. The cemetery reached, Judge Harry Ball assumed charge of the exercises, and after a few well chosen remarks, the master of ceremonies introduced the ladies' quartette of the First Christian church, who sang very beautifully. "The Isle of Somewhere." The quartette is composed of Mesdames Elmer Pether and Charles Brockman and Misses Ross True and Marjorie Gerlach. Miss Violet McFarland presided at the organ. Consul Al Winkle read the ritualistic ceremonies for the Woodmen and the Recorder read the same for the Royal Neighbors. The roll-call was read by the clerks of the two orders and then Rev. Charles H. Oakley, pastor of the First Christian church, delivered the memorial address and as usual held the undivided attention of the large crowd. He chose for his text, "Now Faith is the assurance of things hoped for," and the speaker drew a pretty picture of life in its fullest and most complete sense. He was warmly felicitated upon the excellence of his address. This is the fourth year that Rev. Oakley has been chosen to deliver the memorial address for the Woodmen and Royal Neighbors, which shows he stands high in the regard of these two fraternal organizations. The band rendered two selections, after which the graves of the deceased members were strewn with pretty flowers.

The business day is short in India; it seldom begins before 11 o'clock in the morning. There is a "noon" or lunch period, probably two hours long, followed by an early closing. The American salesman, accustomed to jumping from town to town on fast trains, seeing customers early and late, and sending daily orders to the "house," is hardly the one to tackle the deliberateness of India, where the "house" is best forgotten in the sales talk and where the potency of the first person singular is undeniable.

Play Program At Buena Vista

"Just a song at twilight as the lights are low," on the school grounds at Buena Vista, Saturday night, June 4, a group of people who were brought thence for two hours, listening, and taking part in the songs and games of the play program. When the chairman of the Buena Vista Red Cross committee was asked to judge how many people were there, the answer was made that everybody in Buena Vista and some outsiders, who had come in autos.

In the afternoon, quilts and baseball were indulged in by men and older girls, and ring games for the children. At 6:15 p. m. group games and relay races were played with "a vim" by the majority of those present. The play continued until dark, then the lights from machines were focused upon the song charts and as the melodies rang out upon the night air, the Red Cross workers and all lost conception of time and became reluctant to leave.

Miss Elizabeth Alling, assistant rural service director, from Washington, D. C., was a distinguished guest at the play. The work done along this line received hearty commendation from national headquarters. Miss Ruth Fowler, Mrs. Columbia White, assisted the Junior Red Cross worker with the games. The mandolin and guitar music furnished by Oakley Heberlin, Chas. Sparks and Delbert Hughes (all ex-service men, now generous in this different call to service) fairly enchanted Buena Vista.

Tonight at 8:30 o'clock on the Five Mile church lawn, similar games will be played.

Rev. Tappan Thrills Large Audience

Rev. David S. Tappan, Jr., returned missionary from Hainan, China, was given splendid audiences and a great reception yesterday at the First Presbyterian church. The church where ten of his boyhood years were spent, while his father was their honored and beloved pastor.

The Bible school received his first consideration, all departments being called together at 9:30 a. m. for him to address them, and especially to explain the puzzling gold ideographs on the great flaming silk banner that has held attention of young and old ever since last Christmas. The inscription in row after row of Chinese characters appears to be a letter of appreciation, written from the pupils of his first school in Kachek, and published, so to speak, Chinese fashion, on a banner for all to read. The school accorded Mr. Tappan a great ovation on his appearance, showing unmistakably, the place he and his work holds in their hearts.

At the morning service Mr. Tappan spoke intimately regarding his own particular field of work in the island of Hainan, at the town of Kachek, which is the most southern of all the mission stations in the great kingdom of China. First he outlined the needs of the country, and then showed how some of these needs are being met.

In part he said: "The first thing a stranger would notice in Hainan would be the lack of good roads. It takes 5 days to go 70 miles from the seaport to my town of Kachek. All freight is carried by men at great effort and great expense."

"All work is done by hand, the lack of machinery keeping the people to primitive methods. The Kachek church was built entirely by hand, timbers saved, seats built, everything done in this slow fashion. Boss carpenters get 25c a day, and ordinary workmen but 10c."

"Agriculture is exceedingly primitive. The crude plows one sees merely scratch the top of the ground, and remind one of the implements Abraham must have used before he left Ur of the Chaldees."

"Sanitation, so familiar to us in advanced America, is an unknown word to the natives of Hainan. In traveling on a boat I usually reserve a compartment for greater privacy. I recall that on one trip the next compartment held a dozen lepers. My query was, what sort of folks were in my compartment on its preceding trip? Yet these same lepers held a little religious service in their compartment, and I wished we could give them sanitation along with Christianity."

"It is difficult, even in the churches, to protect oneself from contagious disease. At a service one often sees people in all stages of smallpox, but this is received as a matter of course to them. A good doctor is a sore need. American pills are so small that the Chinese feel they are not getting enough for their money. They want a quart at least at a dose, so they will have faith in the medicine. Native doctors are very amusing—until you stop to watch people die under their ministrations; then it becomes tragic."

"The Chinese government schools are very inefficient. The teachers are poor instructors, they have no discipline and use miserable equipment. Only recently have they permitted girls to go to school, probably because they were afraid they would get to know more than the men. The only girl schools in China are conducted by missionaries."

"Sometimes Americans complain about graft in their official world. But the worst conditions to be found in America are a thousand times better than what we encounter in China. 'Graft' in that land is merely the official word for 'making money on the side.' An official is merely a robber, masquerading in uniform. Nowadays it is the style for victorious soldiers to celebrate by killing a few tens of people, and I have watched while they did it. Yet when I read of Oklahoma, I must not be too harsh with the heathen."

"We who go to China realize that China is the foundation of Christian civilization. An old Chinese teacher said to me: 'China needs Christianity for two reasons: first, it teaches men to be honest; and second, it teaches men to serve.' The greatest indictment of Confucianism is the fact that those who know it best are the officials most corrupt in all the nation."

"Christianity is the dynamic that puts all things into actual service. To put the whole gospel into the whole world is the whole task of the whole church. How shall this be done? 'We use Jesus' way: give them object lessons, and they follow the suggestion. For instance, the missionaries built a quarter mile of road close to their compound, as it ought to be built. The Chinese then finished it on through the city and shortly the general of the district had it extended on to another city. Thus we start things, and they finish them."

"We sent for a gas engine and a dynamo from the states to show them how electric light looks and what a sawmill might be like. For the first time in Hainan we showed them how to make the wind—which they fear so greatly—work for them in an American windmill."

"One of the by-products of missionary effort is sanitation. There are no sewers, so we put in septic tanks. All which have been a great success. All students are protected at night by sleeping under mosquito netting. We gave a stereopticon lecture on the fly, and the government school sent over their students, 400 strong, who were deeply impressed."

"In the matter of agriculture, we have been importing good plows, and teaching them to plow deep, hoping we will be able to plant worthy seed in their hearts at the same time. In the Cows are used exclusively for work animals; there is no milk in Hainan, and there are no horses for transportation other than their old schools, which says a great deal in China."

"There is nothing more difficult to teach than the dignity of labor. They do not recognize me when I am dressed for working; they think I am the teacher's coolie. If a student without money is not willing to work, there is no place for him at our school. If he is willing to do manual labor for an education for four hours a day, we are willing to teach him. The learned men of Old China thought strong bodies were not needed for various industries. By athletics and various industrial employment, such as shoemaking, clothmaking, agriculture, we are trying to build men."

"We teach them not only to be good Christians but to be good patriots. All Chinese students are this. It is one of the great hopes of China."

The speaker described one of the night parades, during the rise famous 'student movement' of China, with a multitude of floats, all made of tissue paper. Among others was the man of China, pictured as a subberry leaf and Japan, as a silk worm, about to devour it, beginning at Shanghai. Another was a clock pointing to 5 minutes of 12, answering the slur of the Jap at what he called their 'five minute patriotism,' which now has lasted for over two years."

Continuing, the speaker told of their theatre, where the boys wrote the play and did all the acting, even summing two nights, from 9 to 12 o'clock each night. "The grand finale," he said, "was the bringing of a great variety of articles all made in Japan, and burning them, to the delight of the audience. These were their own possessions. When I asked regarding them, 'Didn't you Americans sacrifice them?' he said, 'No, we are trying to imitate America. You see, I had been teaching them history. These are the future leaders of China. They sacrificed things they had bought with their own money to show their patriotism. One of the leaders in the student movement recently declared 'Only Christianity can save China.' We have faith to believe that it not only can but it will."

The evening sermon was on "The Lights and Shadows of China" and was a masterly analysis of the social, economic and religious conditions and possibilities of that interesting land.

"This afternoon at The Manse, Mr. Tappan will be the guest of honor of the Stephen Lindsley Guild. This evening, at the church, a reception will be given in his honor, under the direction of the Women's Missionary Society, the other missionary organizations in the church co-operating. A splendid evening is in prospect. One of the enjoyable features of the services yesterday was the large number of old friends who remained to greet Mr. Tappan. His memory faces after so long an absence was one of the things which made the day a delightful one."

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, matrimony, troubles, weas, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly—Please give me a recipe for a small beef loaf enough for two or three.

MRS. H. C. G.

Beef Loaf—To one pound of round steak, chopped fine, add nearly a cup of chopped onion, one egg, three tablespoons of milk, one cup bread crumbs, a little onion, sprig of parsley, salt and pepper.

Mix thoroughly and form into a loaf. Place into the baking pan, cover with bits of butter, pour a little water around the loaf and bake one hour, basting frequently. Let brown well. This may be served with gravy or tomato sauce.

It is good to put two slices of bacon across the top when putting in to bake.

Dear Miss Wise—I have been married nine years. For the first three years my husband was very affectionate and then he left quite suddenly. He was still the very best of husbands to me, considered me in every way. Much to my astonishment, however, a few months ago he started all over again to call me endearing names and to notice the lights in my hair and how bright my eyes were, what beautiful teeth I had and that his wife didn't require any paint and powder and creams to give her a good complexion.

This has puzzled me very much, because he seemed to get worse. He was never so attentive to me, even when we were engaged. Do you think that I should be flattered or suspicious? I have two boys and one girl. It would interest me very much to know just what you think about it.

CURIOUS.

Do not be suspicious. Doubt will only make you unhappy. Perhaps your husband lost interest in you for a while and thought he cared for some one else. Now he has awakened up to the fact that he loves you and he is making up for lost time. Be his companion so that he will not have occasion to look for sympathy elsewhere.

Estelle—Have a plain talk with your mother. Surely she won't consider marrying if she had not a legal separation from her present husband. The man isn't in his right mind. I'm sure, and would advise you to tell your husband about everything.

Fringed frocks are gaining in popularity every day. They are especially attractive made in navy, black or gray and trimmed with fringe in self color. Wood vs. Heat.
It is not generally realized that wood is a splendid nonconductor of heat, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. Tests have been made, showing the properly built wood house is exceptionally warm in winter and cool in summer, and that a wood roof is superior in this respect to slate or almost any other material except tile laid with air spaces. The shingle roof also has an advantage over slate and tile in that it is light and does not require such heavy or expensive support.

Baby Fussed All the Time

Sykes Comfort Powder Healed Its Skin & Stopped All Fussing

Lawrence, Mass.—"My oldest child was badly chafed, fussed all the time, and the only way I could do anything with him was to keep soft cloths next to his skin. I tried several powders but nothing helped him until I heard of Sykes Comfort Powder. I cannot recommend it too highly because it has healed the skin affections of my children after everything else had failed, and stopped all fussing."—Mrs. E. L. Green, Lawrence, Mass.

The reason Sykes Comfort Powder is so successful in such cases is because it contains six healing antiseptic ingredients not found in ordinary talcums. For twenty years it has been used and endorsed by physicians and mothers, and nurses call it "A Healing Wonder."

BILLY WILKES

When Billy first opened his eyes the next morning he was nearly blinded by the bright light from the sun shining on the great alkali plain.

"If this light were to keep up I would get what is called snow blindness," said Billy to Burton, who was sitting up blinking his eyes and trying to keep them open.

"Of course we could jump into the water and swim until it went by, but how could we get back on the track again is what I can't tell. Can you two suggest anything?"

"It seems to me," said Burton, "we have had our share of trouble since we left Japan. First, it was an earthquake; then, getting stuck; then, in the freight car; then, fooled by a mirage; then footsore and weary from the alkali dust; and now, having to choose between swimming a wide lake and getting run over by a train of cars."

"I am sure," said Stubby, "I have come to such a state of mind that I don't care whether I am drowned or starved, so if it is done quickly, and I am put out of my misery in a hurry."

"Yes," said Billy Jr., "but we are not going to be here long, for just across this lake lies a country rich in food and drink for us."

"You say, just across?" replied Burton. "It is very well to say it in that cheerful tone, as if this Great Salt Lake that we have to cross were nothing but a mill pond. But I tell you, it is going to cost us our lives to get across."

A WIFE IN THE MAKING

CHERRY'S RETREAT

For the rest of the day Cherry was not seen by any member of the Randall family save Aunt Phoebe, who every now and then disappeared for a time herself.

"She trotted down to the wood 'n' fetch something," as she put it, in answer to all inquiries.

Had anyone had the curiosity to follow her they would have been surprised to find that the good soul made for a clearing in the middle of some spruce trees, where an awning had been hastily erected by clever fingers and from under which the dark head and eyes of one Cherry Randall occasionally were to be glimpsed.

Surrounded by books and magazines and the latest papers from home which the careful Phoebe had duly brought her, Cherry sat at four o'clock munching a large piece of Phoebe's best form chocolate pie and reading what was going on back in old Chicago.

"I expect you have your side, honey," said Phoebe, wisely. "The lived night and day with Miss Sally now for close on to fifteen years. I gets to know her in that time. An' she ain't nevah changed. Nevah. She ain't nevah gwine ter, neither. I knows. An' pol lady, she never gives herself, nor no one els, no peace. Marse Ned's he's got so fussed and mad like with her sometimes. You've smek Miss Cherry, and that pale-faced Miss Arline what his mother tried to push him to like always would have been easy fur Miss Sally ter have handled. She ain't got no spunk at all."

"Miss Arline!" breathed Cherry softly. "You mean Miss Arline Bates, Aunt Phoebe?" with a tenseness in her voice.

"Yas'm; young lady what works fer him now. Chua all way from Kansas City two years ago—then went back sudden-like. And one month ago she showed up here again."

WHEN A FELLER NEEDS A FRIEND—BY BRIGGS

This Entire Family Has Been Helped

"It has been about a year now since Tanlac has fixed me up and I have been enjoying the very best of health ever since," said Ott F. Grether, of Fairlawn, O., well known mechanic. "My stomach was so disordered that I couldn't eat meats or vegetables at all, and even what I did manage to eat disagreed with me. I had blinding headaches and dizzy spells that almost worried the life out of me. My kidneys were disordered, and my back hurt so bad that I just dreaded to undertake any work that caused me to stoop over. My sleep was restless and broken, and mornings I felt as tired as when I went to bed the night before. "My sister-in-law got me to try Tanlac, and the medicine gave me a splendid appetite, and my back ached up so fine that I could eat anything I wanted without it bothering me. My kidneys no longer worry me, and I can lie on my back for hours at a time and work on a machine. My sleep is sound and refreshing, and I feel as fine as I did when I was a boy. My wife and children have also gotten splendid results from Tanlac, and there is nothing too good I can say about it. I intend to take some of the medicine this spring as a tonic."

Cutlip Loses, Must Pay Fine; Important Ruling Made By Judge Stephenson In "Dry Case"

Judge Will P. Stephenson of West Union, in an opinion handed down Monday affirmed the lower court in the case of Basil Cutlip, plaintiff in error, against the State of Ohio, defendant in error, and remanded the cause for execution of sentence.

This is the proceedings brought to review the judgment of William McManes, Clay township justice of the peace, in which the magistrate made a finding of guilty against Cutlip, who at the time was a resident of the city of Portsmouth, of a charge of manufacturing intoxicating liquor and sentenced him to pay a fine of $1000.

The error proceedings were prosecuted, based on the sole contention that the justice by virtue of the act creating a Municipal Court in Portsmouth, was without jurisdiction, inasmuch that the Crabbe Act did not directly repeal the Municipal Court act and as repeals by implication are not favored, that Sec. 6 of the Crabbe Act is a nullity in so far as its conflicts with Sec. 38 of the Municipal Court Act in fixing the jurisdiction of justices of the peace as limited to this particular case.

The court took issues on this point and in this connection says, "It must be remembered that since the adoption of our new constitution the office of Justice of the Peace is purely a creature of statute and its jurisdiction may be enlarged or diminished according to the whim or caprice of each succeeding legislature—if done in accord with the established law. Commenting further the court says, "Congress on both sides seem to think that the sole question to determine is whether or not Sections 6 and 9 of the Crabbe Act implicitly repeal Section 38 of the Municipal Court Act," and to this the court says, "Further along Judge Stephenson states there are repeals of two kinds, Express and Implied, Express when declared in direct terms, and Implied when the intention to repeal is inferred from subsequent repugnant legislation.

In his opinion Judge Stephenson says he cannot concur in the opinion of Judge Routzahn, cited by the plaintiff in error, in which the learned judge gives to the word "ALL" in the repealing sections of the Crabbe Act, a limited construction that this court can not grasp, says the Adams county jurist, as in effect, that court holds that the word "ALL" refers only to laws pertaining to the prohibition in the traffic of liquor.

"ALL" is the most comprehensive word we have, and if we ascribe to the Legislature just ordinary sense, we could not think that it would use the word "ALL" when it is intended to express only a very small part."

Ingrown Nail Will Turn Out

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

not one could throw any light on the case.

Mrs. Kaber, with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. McGinnis, had motored to Cedar Point two days before the killing, and Mrs. Kaber, during the police investigation, maintained repeatedly she knew nothing of the crime until a wire from her daughter reached her.

She told police she returned to the city the day after the attack, but did not reach home until after her husband's death.

Specialists Find Poison

Almost immediately after Kaber's death his internal organs were examined by specialists, and it was found his stomach contained enough arsenic to cause death. Before being removed to his home a helpless invalid, Kaber had been treated in two city hospitals, but the investigation revealed he had been given no arsenic in either of those.

Police went to work on the theory the poison was given to him in his food while he was being cared for at home, but their investigation along this line brought them nothing.

The bloody, home-made dagger found by the murder victim's bedside, and a stained cotton glove were the only clues found in the murder room.

Neither could be traced to their owners by authorities and within a few weeks the hue and cry of the murder died away and police gave up their efforts, but always the other agencies were at work.

Reservoir Breaks; Heavy Rain

In the middle of the afternoon, breaking of the Skagway reservoir and Beaver dam near Victor, coupled with a heavy downpour of rain in the Arkansas river watershed and in Pueblo, caused another rise. Again last night followed another heavy rain storm. In none of the floods of yesterday, however, did the waters reach the level of Friday night.

The wash-out of railway lines leading to the stricken area created a menacing situation to be overcome today.

Fuel supplies in Pueblo were estimated by Red Cross officials as being less than sufficient for three days. Roads to the city are impassable for miles around. Efforts are being made to transport food from surrounding towns by airplane. Several machines have already been sent out with blankets, and medical supplies.

A virtual embargo on all shipments to Pueblo has been effected by most all railroads entering the city.

Government Has Little Control Of It

But this is impossible. The government faces a condition and not a hypothetical case. And Mr. Harding realizes the full strength of the electorate is being exerted to make the administration more in this or that direction so as to hasten a return to normalcy. It is a fact that the Harding administration has given more time and thought to domestic problems and particularly business readjustment than anything else, but even the folks in the administration admit that the tide of circumstances over which no one in the government has control is almost irresistible.

Harding Breaks Precedent

During the week President Harding broke a precedent in order to speed up one form of relief for American producers. By implication he suggested reductions in freight rates to the Interstate Commerce Commission and found upon inquiry there that already a program of voluntary reduction by the carriers of burdensome rates. Incidentally, Mr. Harding seems to think that the days of horizontal increases or decreases in freight rates are about over and that the inequities of that system ought not to be repeated in any revision of freight rates.

The farmers have been clamoring for an adjustment of freight rates. The carriers have been reluctant but the power of the agricultural element of the nation in the Harding administration loomed up as too great to resist and the carriers are trying to work out a program that will least harm to them.

UNIVERSAL ELECTRIC WASHER

Washes Dirt Out of Clothes Washes Work Out of Washing

The "Universal" does its work without working the user. It takes care of the washing—requires no caretaker. And when it washes, it cleanses thoroughly.

Clothes placed in the smoothly finished perforated cylinder are gently lifted and dipped into the water. The cylinder revolves twice one way then reverses, making 18 complete revolutions per minute.

The rich, bubbly suds slosh, spray and surge through the meshes of the fabrics, loosen the clinging dirt and dissolve all greasy matter. The finest chiffons and georgettes and coarse, heavy blankets are revealed to you spotlessly laundered.

Simplest For the User Safest For the Clothes

Sheets and shirts put into the "Universal" do not come out looking like old lace. It neither wears nor tears clothes to prove they have been washed. It treats delicate fabrics as gently as it washes heavy linens thoroughly.

The Washer That Marks All Laundry Bills "PAID"

A clean bill of health is largely a matter of wearing clean clothes. Purchase of the "Universal" Washer marks all future laundry bills "PAID." It puts the stamp of cleanliness on all your wearables—on all your washable things. The "Universal" is an investment in home welfare. It saves time and labor—saves its cost in practically endless washing. In buying a washer be guided by the happy experience of thousands of other women.

Everything To Do With Nothing To Fuss With

The "Universal" Washer leaves you placidly unconcerned about its mechanism. It requires no attention—not even a thought. Motor and silent-running gears are fully concealed in the sturdy steel cabinet. They are out of sight, out of mind—never out of order.

Settling Zone Clears The Water To Better Cleanse Clothes

Grit and grime washed out of clothes cannot be washed back into them. All dirt flushed out by the hot, sudsy water sinks and is trapped in the Settling Zone and cannot re-enter the cylinder. The "Universal" insures cleaner clothes washed in cleaner water.

Drier Wringing—Safely Done

The "Universal" Washer has a sturdy, non-sagging Wringer with hard maple bearings which require no oiling. Equipped with safety release to instantly relieve pressure on the rolls. Wringer easily detached from the Washer.

Swings, Locks And Wrings In Four Positions

Wringer swings and automatically locks in four convenient wringing positions. Cannot wring while swinging, cannot swing while wringing.

Wrings from washer to rinse water, from rinse water to blueing water, from blueing water to basket without moving the machine.

Come in and let us demonstrate the described points to you. Down Stairs Store

Shares of railroads traversing the flooded section of Colorado were dull and not materially changed.

Asphalt and Mercier preferred showed increased heaviness. Motor accessories, chemicals and motion picture specialties also lost ground and fuel and Colorado and Southern Railway lost 1 to 2 points respectively as a result of latest advices from the distressed section. # SEE MY LAWYER

by MAX MARCIN

By arrangement with A.H. Woods

An AL CHRISTIE 6 Reel Production
WITH T. ROY BARNES

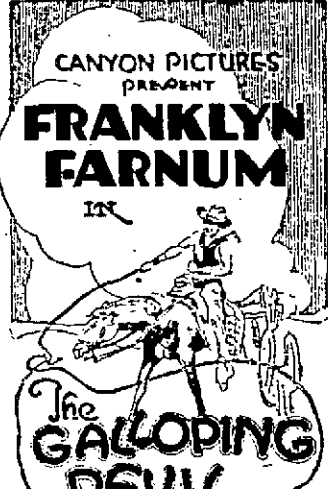

At The Eastland Theatre For Two Nights Beginning Tonight Al Christie Presents His Latest Six Act Feature Comedy "See My Lawyer." — A Successor to "So Long Letty" With The Same Cast Of Players — Six Big Reels Of Unalloyed Joy To Make You Really Laugh—See It Sure.

PROGRAM
A—Overture — Popular Selection — Eastland Orchestra.
B—The Eastland Weekly News Events.
C—A Gayety Comedy.
D—Al Christie presents T. Roy Barnes in "See My Lawyer".

This is the second Robertson-Cole super-special in which T. Roy Barnes has appeared, having been one of the famous quartet of funmakers in "So Long Letty," a picture that has established records from coast to coast. Mr. Barnes appeared in New York in the stage production of "See My Lawyer" and established himself as one of the leading comedians of the country. Critics who have seen the new picture agree that Barnes is funnier than ever. The story has to do with two young fellows—Robert Gardner and Billy Noble—who become interested in a machine which an inventor, Trueman by name, declares will manufacture artificial rubber. Robert and Billy begin to float stock in an artificial rubber company, and so convincing are their circulars that money begins to pour in. Robert, believing he is on the road to a fortune, proposes to his sweetheart, is accepted and the wedding day set. The rubber trust, hearing of the success of the invention, ask that their experts be given a demonstration. They want to buy the invention. On the day set for the demonstration, Billy is alone in the office of the inventor and suddenly discovers that the machine is a fake. He realizes that he and Robert are in a fine fix, their supposedly wonderful invention being nothing more or less than a fraud. It's a fine mixup, but several logical developments which are brimful of clean-cut fun straighten matters out.

For Its Attraction Tonight and Tuesday The Temple Theatre Will Show Dorothy Gish in "Atta Boy's Last Race." One of the Best and Most Thrilling Stories of the Race Track Ever Made—Also A Good Harold Lloyd Comedy.

It is a good thing for Dorothy Gish that the Triangle-Fine Arts five reel drama, "Atta Boy's Last Race," in which Miss Gish plays the leading role, that of Sue Keane, is the story of a horse and not the story of an elephant. Otherwise, Miss Dorothy might have an elephant on her hands, instead of a race-horse.

The hero of the picture is Atta Boy himself, a race-horse. Atta Boy, off the stage, is a race-horse as well as in the picture. This is his first appearance in pictures—plays, as Tri-angle hired him at the close of a successful season on the Tia Juana track. Miss Gish, in the play, after Atta Boy has gone lame in a race, has to take and nurse him back to a complete recovery. The picture was weeks in the making, and every day during these weeks Dorothy rode Atta Boy.

The love that she was supposed to feel for him in the picture became the real thing during the course of the picture's production, and when it came time to return the horse to his real owner, the proceedings struck a snag. Miss Gish wouldn't let him go, in short, she bought Atta Boy for her very own, after a pretty time to get the owner to sell him.

If you want to insure your ear, or property of any kind, we would be pleased to do it for you. Office open evenings from 6 to 9 o'clock.

FRANKLYN FARNUM
IN
A STARTLING STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

At the Exhibit Tonight and Tuesday Franklyn Farnum Will Be the Attraction In "The Galloping Devil," the First of a Series of 5 Reel Pictures Produced By William N. Selig.

A Tale Of The Western Plains, The Heart Of A Hero, The Faithfulness Of A Woman's Love And The Unavailable Fate of a Deep-Dyed Villain.

ALSO SPECIAL SPECIAL
"Blue Sunday" A Great Comedy Different From The Average—Starring Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran. Don't Miss This One.

Franklyn Farnum, who is to appear at the Exhibit theatre in "The Galloping Devil," for a limited engagement, is the possessor of the well-earned reputation of being the greatest liar in pictures.

In "The Galloping Devil," Farnum plays the part of a smiling knight of the sage bench. Andy of the Flying U. It seems that Andy is much given to the telling of a good story, and the less truth that the story possesses, the better the story is.

In this picture Farnum can lie as fast as he can gallop and things get very much up in the air for awhile, but before the story is over he uncovers much devilry, saves the heroine in regular wild West style, and with the blushing cow girl as his bride lives happily ever afterwards.

Don't Overlook This Good One At The Strand Tonight and Tuesday—Anita Stewart in a Wonderful Melodrama, "The Fighting Shepherdess." It's Worth Your While To See.

An almost lifelike story of how a simple, inconspicuous girl, through a strange series of incidents arose from the depths of a western ranchhouse and obscure and uncertain parentage to a position of wealth and power in her community is the story of "The Fighting Shepherdess," from the famous book by Caroline Lockhart, and the latest Anita Stewart production which will be seen at the Strand commencing tonight.

The natural inclinations of the girl are against the surroundings in which she was placed and it so transpires that by chance a redoubt shepherdess with a sense of chivalry arrived at the tavern to champion her cause against the advances of an objectionable character. It was through the opportunity offered by this man that Kate, played by Anita Stewart, was able to leave the tavern and take up a life as a hermit girl.

An appealing romance enters the story shortly after Kate leaves the tavern. Huge Dutton played by Wallace MacDonald, visiting the cattle country, becomes enamored of the simple shepherdess and an engagement is effected. Make up your mind now to go to the Strand and see this new picture.

IN LOVE WITH 73 YEAR OLD COUSIN

CHILLICOTHE, O., June 6.—Charging that his wife had kissed another man two weeks after her marriage, and that she deeply was infatuated with a seventy-three-year-old cousin, Rev. Joseph R. Smith, 63 years old, filed suit for divorce today from Miss Smith, 40 years old. They were married in 1919.

Mrs. Smith was organist at her husband's church. Rev. Mr. Smith had just completed a 42-year stretch of matrimony, he says, "without the slightest bit of trouble."

The preacher's petition stated that there also was a young man in the congregation whom his wife could not refrain from "adoring and caressing," even in public gatherings. The pastor says his wife hit him with a skillet and otherwise abused him. She says he pinched and hurt her.

CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHTS NO. 3

The pugilistic crown, first worn by John L. Sullivan, passed to the head of James J. Corbett on September 7, 1892, in the twenty-first round of their championship fight at New Orleans. Corbett had a lot of fun winning the fight and the $45,000 that went with it. He lowered three inches above the champion and continually snarled down at Sullivan in a most annoying manner.

Corbett had been a bank clerk before taking the ring seriously, and the fans and newspaper correspondents delighted in seeing the champion's master tactics as they were called. These dancing master tactics ended the powerful Sullivan, however, and enabled Corbett to pick openings for his attack.

As the battle spun along toward its end, the Californian forced Sullivan to take the defensive. He had the champion draped over the ropes when the bell rang at the end of the twentieth round. In the next round Sullivan, beaten down by smashing rights and lefts, tried hard to regain his feet and carry on, but his strength was not equal to his will, and he was counted out.

Ring enthusiasts went to New Orleans from all parts of the country to see the fight. Others came from Mexico and Canada. It was the grueling ring battle in the public mind that had ever been staged and good seats were sold for seventy-five dollars and more.

Carpentier Plans Battle Of Speed And Endurance

MANTHASSET, N. Y., June 6.—A battle campaign such as Georges Carpentier's illustrious countryman, Marshal Foch, might plan, is being carefully mapped out at the camp of the French boxer.

First and last Dempsey's challenger, his manager, Francois Descamps, and Gustav Wilson are strategists.

"After all," said Georges during the course of a recent work-out, "the theory of military strategy may be applied to boxing. In a fight of this sort, imagine, for instance, that Dempsey, my foe on July 2 is an opposing army, and he laughed at the comparison, 'then remember that the Jersey City ring will indeed be the battle ground.

"We are conscious of the strength of the foe and the battle ground will be, we might say, familiar to us.

"We know that the enemy is dangerous and that it will take something besides a direct assault to defeat him. So it simmers down to a battle of speed and endurance and strategy.

"Our scheme is to show more cleverness than the enemy and to throw our forces into the battle in such a manner that he will be able neither to strike that direct early blow that always spells defeat, nor launch at any time a felling attack."

Comparing Dempsey's punches to big guns and conceding that they are of longer range and shoot bigger shells than Carpentier's, Georges laughs this way with the remark: "Big shells are no danger when they go over your head; rifles bullets kill when they hit the mark."

"The challenger laughs again when he is reminded of the assertion made by many sportsmen: 'Dempsey is too big for Georges.'"

"They said Willard was too big for Dempsey," David Seligowitz, George Washington's spokesman, retorts. "Willard was a champion and a tough fighter. Manager Descamps ends the talk with: 'You see my Georges, he has superior intelligence.'"

Soft For The Fighters

NEW YORK, June 6.—When Dempsey fights Carpentier on July 2 he will receive more than $135,850 a second while he is in the ring. That's what he would receive if he was to get only the $300,000 which Tex Rickard first guaranteed to pay him. Now, however, with a seat sale of $1,000,000 in sight, and with Dempsey working on a percentage basis, he will receive even more.

If the bout should go the full twelve rounds, Dempsey will get at least $25,000 a round. For each minute of the three-minute rounds he will bring down $8,333.33 a minute. That means that Jack will get $135,850 for every tick of the timer's watch.

That is the toll for each second in the even of the bout going the limit of twelve rounds. If Jack should happen to knock the Frenchman out in four rounds he will receive about $140 per second.

Fisher Will Not Return

CINCINNATI, June 6.—Pitcher Ray Fisher, who jumped the team to catch the University of Michigan Club early in April, wants to return to the payroll now that the college season is nearly over. He has applied to Judge Landis for reinstatement, and the Commissioner has written to President Herrmann asking if he was given his leave of absence to go to Michigan. "Quite the reverse," replied the Red chief. "In fact, we urged Fisher to remain with us and offered him $1,000 more than his signed contract called for if he would remain, but he elected to jump to the Ann Arbor outfit." Manager Moran stated that he did not care to have Fisher return to the club. This means that if he should happen to be reinstated he will be sold or traded.

Eddie Coons To Go Higher

CINCINNATI, O., June 6.—Shortstop Coons, of the University of Cincinnati team, may join the Reds as soon as his college work is over for the year. He had a talk with President Herrmann yesterday, and is likely to come to terms with this club. Coach Royd Chambers, of the varsity team, says that Coons is the first real major league he has ever had among his pupils in his 12 years of coaching of college teams. Coons is batting around .600 against college pitching, and he is a whirlwind in the field. If he can stand the gaff in the professional ranks he may turn out to be a real star.

McDermott Beats Peebles Team

The fast McDermott team trampled on the Peebles tribe on the latter's diamond Sunday afternoon taking a hotly contested combat by the score of 10 to 7.

Hubert Test of this city, was on the mound for the winners, and while hit with considerable freedom he was strong in the pinches and emerged on the long end of the score because his teammates outplayed. McDermott's career in the game and took a commanding lead. Bill Doherty and Elliott led the attack with three hits each while the latter played a star game at second base. Killel retired at the end of the seventh and Wiley Platt, former noted big league southpaw, took place and retired the enemy in order the last two rounds.

A feature of the contest came in the first inning when with the bases loaded, Catcher Foster for Peebles, poked a frantic shot driving in the herd. The score by innings:

McDermott ..... 203 041 003—10
Peebles ..... 000 000 003—7

This is believed to be the longest plunge ever made by a woman under any conditions. Miss Nolan's official record is 65 feet, 10 inches.

Midgets Win

Sunday afternoon on the North Moreland Stars diamond, the Midgets of Portsmouth won an 8 to 5 game from the Stars. The Midgets' battery was Ribble and McLaughlin. The hard hitting of the Midgets featured the contest.

P. H. S. Finished Fourth In Track Meet

Portsmouth's high school track team won fourth place in the tri-state high school track meet at Ashland Sunday. Huntington won high with 43 points, Ashland taking second place with 41. Ironton made 18 points and Portsmouth 11.

The poor showing of P. H. S. was due to the small number of athletes taking part from the local school. There was only five in the meet from Portsmouth and this was not enough for all the various events, the local students entered being mostly runners with Richard Strittmatter leading the locals.

The winner was not decided until the mile relay the last event which Ashland entered three points to the good. Huntington's runners entered this event determined to win and with they did by two points.

Lady of Ashland was the star of the meeting winning first in the 100, 220, and 440 yard runs and broad jump. Woolley, Donovan, Staten and Donahy were the point setters for Huntington while Lang made the best showing for Ironton.

Strittmatter won first place in the 220 yard hurdles. He won second place in the 100 yard dash, third in the 220 yard dash, third in the 440 yard dash. Mitchell of P. H. S. won third place in the 440 yard dash. Wilson, Frowning and Thomas were the only other local athletes in the meet. They started in the different events but failed to finish better than third.

GREENUP

Ever watch the moon shine on a nice clear night? And then suddenly a cloud would creep along through the skies and dim the brightness of the moon. That is exactly what the Greenup Sheriff, Harvey Elam, is doing to the moonshining in Greenup county.

Next Thompson, was among the last taken. Nowt was peacefully following his trade at Sugar Camp, near Lym, Ky., and thinking the Sheriff and his deputy were customers offered them some of the best White Mule made in this section of the country, and the Sheriff promptly took possession of his entire stock, still, warm and all. It is one of the most up-to-date stills that was ever captured around here, having a capacity of 30 gallons and being made of solid copper with a 50 foot worm. The still was in operation when the Sheriff made his appearance, and old John Barclay, corn of the finest grade Elliott county type was quickly dripping into a quart self sealer. Thompson who is about 40 years of age smilingly surrendered when the Sheriff told him that the feller would like to feed him for a few days. He was let out on $500.00 bond today.

Mary Tittle who was recently operated upon has fully recovered and returned home today in the Staff Undertaking company's ambulance.

Among the late arrivals at the county jail are Henry Elliott and his brother who were captured near Slidington, Ky., with a 25 gallon still in operation and plenty of wash, ready to work.

Vern Callihan has purchased a fine black mare.

Mrs. George W. Candill of Palmyra was taken to the Martins Hospital in the Staff Undertaking Company's ambulance today. She will submit to an operation for gall stones.

Eye Trouble

Dear Doctor:—

I would like the opportunity of reaching the public with a little message telling them what wonderful results I have obtained through Chiropractic Adjustments for my eyes. My eyes have been weak all my life, the past eight years I have constantly worn glasses.

I consulted a specialist who told me the nerves were weak and fitted me with glasses.

In the past year I have suffered with severe headaches.

I consulted Dr. Knechtly, he said the nerves leading to the eye were weakened by pressure, he proceeded to adjust it and after the second adjustment I took off my glasses and my headaches ceased.

I certainly feel very grateful to Dr. Knechtly for his great work and I hope that others will profit by this letter.

Gall-Stones

To Whom It May Concern:

Our family physician said, I had gall stones and that I must undergo an operation. I dreaded so much an operation that I decided to try Chiropractic Adjustments first and as a result I have never had an attack since I took the first adjustment, that has been over a year ago.

My health is better in every way than it has been in years. I certainly can truthfully recommend Knechtly and Knechtly, Chiropractors, to those suffering with gall stones.

Nervous Breakdown And Stomach Trouble

I was treated by Knechtly and Knechtly for Stomach and Nervous troubles. I have had a bad stomach for twenty years, several years ago my nervous system broke down, I was simply a nervous wreck, I tried different Doctors and I only got temporary relief until I went to Knechtly and Knechtly, Chiropractors, and they have cured me. It has been a year ago.

I am surely grateful I am able to work and I know I owe it to Knechtly and Knechtly.

Kidney And Liver Troubles

To Whom It May Concern:—

I was treated for Kidney and Liver trouble in June, 1920, by Knechtly and Knechtly. I took twenty Adjustments, I felt so well I quit, he told me I ought to take more Adjustments but I failed to do it. I worked nearly two hundred days steady time.

I had a severe case of pneumonia in March 1921. It left me in a desperate condition, I coughed day and night, I could not sleep, when I could walk I went to Knechtly's I have taken ten Adjustments. I am greatly benefited, my cough has ceased, I sleep well, I am gaining in strength every day. I owe it to Dr. Knechtly.

I am sixty-seven years old. Chiropractic is certainly alright.

Catts has come back. Catts, the wandering ex-governor of Florida has been returned to his late bailiwick charged with peonage, patronage graft and divers other crimes and misdemeanors. This same Catts got into prominence and office by eating a poor Negro raw every night, before going to bed, so as to make himself sleep well. He is the same chap too, who as governor got the legislature to make it a penal offense for any white person to teach a Negro, his real object therein being to close the colored free schools taught by nuns. The supreme court knocked the law out.

These foreign ministries seem to like the distinction, or should it be said the extinction of resigning? Yet, come to think of it Austria has had all the partnership with Germany she will ever want.

Somehow eggs and butter, not to mention beef and pork, do not seem to have gotten the word that congress has passed a tariff act protecting farm products from ruinous foreign competition.

Men are funny creatures, aren't they? We met a man, last week, who told us he had always voted the Republican ticket, because he believed in protecting the American workman against the pauper labor of Europe, and in less than two minutes he proudly called our attention to a suit he had on and asked us to guess how much it cost. "Oh, about $60," we hazarded. "Wrong," he said, "it cost me just $16 and was made in London, England. Got it through a friend of mine, who is a manufacturer. And presumably a Republican who bought all his employees their clothes in England to help out on the high cost of living." Fine, always fine thing to make the other fellow pay the tax.

The Russian Soviet government has broken down again. Well and good, were it not for its bad habit of getting on its feet again and growing worse.

The French do not quickly forget. There was not one of the 40,000 graves of Americans in that country, no matter how isolated, that went without a service and tribute of flowers on Decoration days. In most instances some priest officiated, and lacking him the mayor of the nearest village. Where the dead lay alone some little girl carried a wreath to the grave and said a prayer for the brave American.

Where you make up your mind not to be pleased you are not going to be and that is all there is of it. "Twas said Germany would never convict any of her war criminals, but now that she has convicted the first two tried for cruelty to prisoners the outcry is the punishment imposed is so light as to constitute a mockery of justice. But what right have we over here to complain. We acquit most of our criminals, and the few convicted are given light sentences and then either let go on suspended sentence, or else soon pardoned or paroled.

IMPORTED INFANTS

By Frederic J. Haskin

NEW YORK CITY, June 6.—An interesting novelty in foreign importations is being introduced in New York this season. It is babies—British babies—carefully selected and free from all home ties, ready for adoption in childless American homes.

They come in both sexes and in both blonde and brunette colorings, so that the would-be adopter has a variety from which to pick his favorite type. Each is a beauty as beauty is defined in babyland, and is guaranteed to be under one year old. All are bachelors! No such infants could be procured for adoption in this country. In fact, it is becoming increasingly difficult to find any American babies at all that may be adopted and legally, with all rights reserved. That is why they are being imported from England, which has a surplus supply.

They are being brought to this country through a cooperative arrangement with the National Adoption Society of England and the newly-formed British-American Adoption Committee of this city. The first 15 infants, accompanied by a doctor and five nurses, arrived on one steamer several days ago, and were distributed evenly among three New York adoption nurseries, affiliated with the committee. All of these 15 are now bespoken, and the committee has cabled for another supply.

As soon as it was learned that the babies had arrived, the nurseries were besieged by scores of eager women, some in fashionable l'emoines, some on foot, some married and some not, each trying to persuade the nurses in charge to give her one of the youngsters. Even while the infants were being used to their new cribs and the fascinating, brightly-colored pictures on the nursery walls, their fates were being decided in the front offices. Most of them, we are informed, are to go to families who are socially prominent in New York, and will doubtless inherit considerable wealth when they grow up. But the British baby is not necessarily snobbish. He does not insist upon wealth; but merely a good, comfortable home, where he will receive excellent care and the personal attention and affection that all babies require.

Large Demand For Babies

That there are plenty of such homes only too anxious to adopt infants is shown by the large number of requests received every year by the adoption nurseries in New York—requests that can't possibly be filled by the meager supply of babies turned in by the city hospitals. The many foundling asylums are crowded with children, of course, but not the kind that people want.

"The average person who wishes to adopt a child," says Miss Clara B. Spence, secretary of the new adoption committee, "desires a baby rather than a half-grown child or even three or four years old. Sweet, innocent little babies, less than a year old, are extremely difficult to obtain. Owing to the rules and red tape connected with foundling homes, it is impossible to find a home for babies unless they conform to certain religious denominations.

"In England there is an over-supply of babies who may be adopted and full surrender given. Many people who have lost sons in the war in England have taken babies into their homes, but still there is an over-supply, and since our list for children—for babies not older than one year—cannot be supplied from this country, we are turning to England.

"One reason for the over-supply of English babies is the fact that the adoption laws in England are not so favorable to adopting. There a child may have but one guardian and an adopted child cannot inherit property, while in America the locally adopted child is an heir just as any other member of the family."

Miss Spence, who is principal of Miss Spence's School for Girls on West Fifty-fifth street here, has been interested in securing good homes for children for a number of years. She and her assistant, Miss Charlotte Baker, have placed over 200 children with excellent families, and each has herself adopted a child. They have two adoption nurseries to their credit: a private one of their own and another financed by the Spence Almshouse Association. They are also interested in the Alice Chapin Nursery, the pioneer in its field, started several years ago and still run by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Dwight Chapin.

In his hospital practice Dr. Chapin long ago discovered a curious fact about babies. He found that their one absolute requirement in life, more important than food and sleep, was a mother's love. He found that you could take an ailing infant and feed it the most nutritious food in the most scientific quantities, see that it got plenty of fresh air and sound sleep, and that for a short time—usually a month—it would thrive. Then, suddenly, it would start to lose weight and fade away. Why? Because it was not receiving the necessary amount of cuddles and caresses, and its terrible little ego simply drooped and wilted.

Babies Need Attention

The doctor was so convinced of this that he could no longer bear to see babies sent away to institutions. Instead he secured permission from the hospital and took them home to his wife, who fitted a nursery up for them on the top floor of her house, and proceeded to lavish affection upon them until they once more showed an interest in life.

From this informal beginning the present Alice Chapin Nursery at 2100 Lexington Avenue here, grew. It consists of 11 rooms, with a roof garden, fitted up scientifically for the care of eight babies, but carefully avoiding the atmosphere of an institution. As far as possible, the baby is treated as an individual. He has his own playthings; he gets his share of caresses from his nurse, and he is flattered and amused.

There are only two nurses for the eight babies, however, which Mrs. Chapin considers a handicap. She thinks it would be better if there were only four babies to each nursery unit. "For we have found," says Mrs. Chapin, "that even with a nurse to every four babies, they begin to pine and their progress is slower after they have been here a month or more. What each baby needs is a home and frequently the baby has just as much influence for better health and happiness upon adopted parents as they have upon him. The baby is grateful for his good care and repays in happiness. Frequently one of these adopted babies will save a neurotic woman from illness by giving her an interest in life.

The Chapin Nursery is a clearing house for babies. It rescues them from various quarters and keeps them until good homes for them are found. Often, as is usually the case with foundlings, very little concerning the infant is known. It may have been dropped on a doorstep, found on a river bank, or taken from a dying mother who left no record of her identity. However, the Chapins guarantee their babies. If they fail to please, the adopters may return them within a year—a possibility so rare that it has occurred only once or twice in over 200 cases. On the other hand, the Chapins do not immediately lose sight of their babies. They manage to keep in touch with them in their new homes for a certain length of time until they are convinced that conditions are favorable.

Many of the babies taken from the Chapin Nursery during the past two years have been adopted by unmarried women. According to Dr. Chapin, the maternal instinct is often very highly developed in some of these unmarried applicants, whereas, he says, it is often only slightly developed in married women who are mothers of children. Many of the scores of requests received for the new British infants have come from successful business and professional women who, though avoiding matrimony, are not averse to raising a family.

New-York-Day-By-Day

BY O. O. MONTYRE

NEW YORK, June 6.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up and to my barber to be trimmed and he told me of the days on Second Avenue when Louis the Lump, Big Jack Zelig and Kid Twist ruled as masters of slugging. And we talked of Chuck Connors, who has gone, and a rare spirit he was.

Home and to the station to greet Alan Dwan, newly arrived from the Coast, and thence to Frank Case's Inn and many of the folk of the stage and cinema there and De Wolf Hopper did leave, feigning anger, when called to recite "Casey at the Bat." Nor could I blame him.

My wife abroad to see the new styles and meeting her we went to call on Conningsly Dawson, the scrivener, and L. Brown there and all merry with talk. Going through The Circle we saw a man struck by a truck and flung through a window and yet he was able to walk away.

Reading in the afternoon from the Encyclopedia and did a little labour at my typewriter, but not much, albeit it was raining and not much else to do. In the evening to R. Long's where came Jesse Lasky, the picture man, Gilbert Miller, Sir Henry's son, and Miss Agnes Ayres, a pretty lady, I hold in high esteem. Home late and so to bed.

Along by the library wall on Forty-Second street a young beggar stands. His trousers are rolled up to his knees revealing his artificial limbs. In his button-hole is an American flag—giving the impression that he is a war veteran. As a matter of fact he used to beg near Union Square before he acquired his artificial limbs. He sold his "pitch," so the story goes, to another beggar for $700. Now when he sees a policeman coming, he can roll down his trousers and lose himself in the hurrying crowds. Begging is not permitted in the area he occupies.

Something unusual happens in New York every day. Yesterday I saw one of those haughty carriage footmen, who dress in plum-colored suits and plush hats, chatting and laughing along the curb with a common ordinary public taxicab driver. The world is getting more democratic every hour.

Shanley's has reduced their food prices by nearly half. Churchills and a number of other famous Broadway restaurants have done the same thing. But the New York hotel menu prices remain unchanged. Their argument is—and they will argue the point—that prohibition has deprived them of an enormous revenue and that hotel help is paid 120 per cent higher wages than before the war. They cannot see the light. Many of the biggest hotels in New York have almost entire floors empty. Business has been bad with them and is getting worse and yet a hotel right off of Fifth Avenue in the Twenties recently returned to the $2.50 and $3 a day room. It is packed and jammed and many are sleeping in the halls.

Newport is no longer the society stronghold of America's Southampton at the far end of Long Island's South shore has become the social capital. Even "Birdie" Vanderbilt has cast aside Newport for Southampton. The social capital is not so pretentious as Newport, but many fine homes are going up there and by next year it is believed it will become a show place. Newport is still something to refer to, however. Many of the blue-bloods are sticking to it and lifting the supercilious eyebrow at its hated rival.

Religion Coming Back in Russia

An all day religious procession of men marching under church banners and chanting "Save Us, O Lord!" has recently happened in Petrograd, where the enemies of all religion have been in full control for three years.

The procession was disturbed by the Red authorities. There were too many workmen in it to make a raid prudent, we are told. The Soviet papers refer to it as "a resurrection of the dead." It was no such thing. Religious emotions may be repressed by a god-defying government for a time, but they continue to exist. Religious emotion is the most persistent of all that enter and rule the hearts of righteous men. They have existed from the dawn of history. They will continue to exist until human nature changes.

To these Soviet authorities the parades seemed "unnaturally savage," their papers say. So? It is well to beware when Christians become militant under oppression and wrong. Russia may be coming back to civilization.

The Weather Still Rules the Air

Rain, wind, lightning, are enemies of air travel, even by birds. No one has yet attempted to discover by what method man may successfully combat them when he soars in the air. Weather rules the skies. The sickening tragedy that snuffed out seven lives in Maryland last week is sufficient evidence of that fact. Before men learn to build solid railroad beds and make heavy toll of human life on the rail, how has he so heavily fortified his modes of travel on the surface that practically the only peril is the ever present human limitation. The caprices of the weather have been conquered.

But it is different in the air. We fear it will be long before the air plane can travel safely regardless of the weather. Thus far atmospheric conditions are supreme above the surface, and able to drive back all intruders who seek to solve their mysteries.

A Flu Cure?

The whole world will hope that Dr. Taylor, as announced in the British Medical Journal, has discovered in iodine and honey a sure preventative of influenza. It is said that two or three drops of this mixture on the tongue every three hours keeps off the flu.

A Prize-Winner in Economics

A high school boy in the east has won $1,250 and a gold medal by writing the best high school essay on economics during the past year in the United States or Canada. He is seventeen years old, and has studied the subject only six months.

We mention the matter not so much because a prize has been captured as for calling attention to the boy's method. He read forty volumes on the subject before beginning to write. That's the fine thing. He went after the fundamentals. He absorbed, so far as he was capable of doing it, what the best authorities on economics had written. Then he wrote, re-wrote and revised again his essay.

All the prizes in the commercial age—at least all the large ones—are taken by those who go to the very foundations of their business and learn from experience of others. That's the lesson young David Koch has demonstrated again.

Which Path Do You Tread?

The Kansas City Star speaks of three paths open to all men. The first is inviting, easy going and full of pleasure, but leads straight to failure. The second is one requiring a little more exertion and less gratification of desires of a temporary character. It is the road of mediocrity, which traveled by a multitude of good fellows who escape poverty but never get anywhere in particular. The third path is rocky soil, and uphill, not attractive at first, without, unmercifully facing at first, without indulgence—a hard road to travel in your hand. But it grows better and better the farther one goes on it, and by middle life leads one to pleasant prospects, comfort and security. It is the road to success, which grows more and more delightful, and is full of honors.

The skill of the Sultan Mkwawa of East Africa, taken by the Germans and required from them by the terms of the peace treaty, cannot be found. The East African negroes believe the soul of the Sultan will roam the torrid streets of hell until his skull is laid to rest in his native soil. Alliances intended to restore it for burial. However, the soul probably does not care "two hells" what becomes of it, and the East Africans must be taught better ideas.

Custom Long Kept Up.

Up to a few years ago a horse, saddled and bridled, stood in the stables of the Vivians (Vivian, as it was spelled in the old days) of Treloarven (Cornwall, Eng.) ready for use night and day. For 900 years horses had succeeded each other in commemoration of the escape on horseback of a Vivian who lived in the days of the memorable flood which submerged the land, some say in 1014 and others in 1090.

WHO'S WHO

In The Days News

SIR EDWARD CARSON

Sir Edward Carson's recent appointment to the $30,000 a year post of a lord of appeal, with a seat in the house of lords, marks his disappearance from that political arena in which he has played so very disturbing a role in the last thirty years or more. For as Lord Carson he will by nature of the judicial impartiality imposed upon him as a member of the highest appellate tribunal of Great Britain be debarré from taking any active part in the partisan discussions of that upper chamber, which he has now been elevated.

For many years Carson, himself an Irishman, has been prominently in the public eye by reason of his fierce opposition to Irish home rule. He has been the principal obstacle to the autonomy of Ireland. That is why his retirement at this time is taken to mean that self-government is soon to become an established fact in Ireland. Carson is a native of County Galway, Ireland. He was educated at Trinity college, Dublin, and was admitted to the Irish bar in 1889. He was solicitor general for Ireland in 1892, and again from 1900 to 1906. He was attorney general of the cabinet in 1915, and first lord of the admiralty in 1917. He remained a member of the British cabinet until the end of the war.
